Dear Brother:--

In driving from Nashville to-day I had time to carefully consider the situation of myself in connection with and relation to some of the other workers in the cause. In looking these things over I saw that I had a work to do to get right with God. This I must do at all hazards.

In regard to yourself I have felt that your position to me has been inconsistent and unwarranted, and have felt that my efforts for the work in the past have not had much weight with you. I have allowed this and the position you have at times taken toward me to lead me to say things to you and others that were not right to be said by me. I have spoken sharply and criticised in strong terms. I am sorry for this, and ask your forgiveness.

I do not suppose we shall ever see alike in regard to many matters, too numerous to mention. But so far as I am concerned I can act the part of a Christian, and this I shall try to do. I am seeking for the meek and quiet spirit of my Saviour, and expect help to attain to it.

Your Brother in the Work,

J. E. White
