Dear Arthur:

Many thanks for your October 13th letter part of which we have already discussed over the telephone. I appreciate the response to my inquiry regarding poetry found in Thoughts From the Mount of Blessing and Steps to Christ. You were pleased, I know, to have the data on the appearance of Milton in the book Education--that is the first five lines of Book 1 of Paradise Lost--quoted p. 150, par. 3.

"This is why God has given so many examples showing the results of even one wrong act. From the sad story of that one sin which 'brought death into the world, and all our woe, with loss of Eden,' to the record of him who for thirty pieces of silver sold the Lord of glory, Bible biography abounds in these examples, set up as beacons of warning at the byways leading from the path of life."

Now you will be able to correct your letter of February 25, 1953 to Mrs. Baker.

I wish that a more intensive study of this problem could be made lest we fall into further errors of scholarship. I trust too that the quotation of John Milton will be accessible in the new Index.

It has been a pleasure to talk with students concerning the New England tour. They had most satisfying experiences. We are certainly grateful to you for the cooperation you give on this particular project.

Sincerely your brother,

Dean
